

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT RAFT

Residential Assistance for Families in Transition (RAFT) is a state-funded program that allows families and individuals to stay housed or move into their next home during periods of housing instability and crisis.

Eligible households can receive up to $4,000 in a 12-month period. Funds can be used for: rental or mortgage arrearages; security deposits; first and last month's rent; utility arrearages; furniture; employment-related transportation costs.

How do I apply for RAFT?

You must be screened by a Metro Housing representative to determine eligibility. They are: Monday & Wednesday, 8:45 am – 1:00 pm; Friday, 11:45 am – 1:00 pm. These times represent sign-in hours. If you have signed in during these hours, you will be seen by a representative that day. In instances of high volume, sign-ins may end earlier than 1:00 pm. What happens if I don't have all of the necessary documents with me when I have my screening?

If you do not have all of the required documentation, we will not be able to determine your eligibility. This will result in you having to return to the office at a later time to reapply.

What happens next if it's determined that I'm eligible during my screening meeting?

If it is determined during your screening that you are eligible for RAFT, you will complete an application with the Metro Housing representative at that time.

Will I need to provide any additional forms once I'm eligible?

Additional documentation will be requested after you complete the application at Metro Housing. You will have two weeks from the date of your application to provide any additional requested documentation. If all requested documentation is not provided within two weeks, you will be denied for the RAFT program.

Once I fill out the application, will I definitely receive financial assistance?

No, RAFT funding is not guaranteed. Metro Housing has a set amount of funds that can potentially run out. If your file has not been approved before funds run out, you will not receive payments.
